Guelph police are searching for a hulking suspect who allegedly attacked a stranger with a hammer after a night of drinking at a popular downtown bar. It happened at around 6:30 a.m. Sunday. The victim was dropped off at Guelph General Hospital after the assault, and was found with a black eye, a cut over his left eyebrow, and a broken nose. He will need surgery, and is expected to be okay, but may not be released for another 48 hours. Staff Sgt. Dale Selley says someone thought the victim knew the attacker. "There was some pre-warning comments made by the victim's male acquaintance before he was attacked," said Selley. "That being said we still feel that the suspect is at large and might be capable of similar action in other areas." Anyone who saw the attack or saw the suspect leaving the area is asked to call Det. Shawn Chapman at 519-824-1212 or Det. Mike Colwell at 519-824-4375.Q: Grunt watch task won't change any files I'm using gruntjs to watch for changes to some JS/CSS files and compile the files to a.js file again. I set up a task like: watch: { js: { files: ['app//'], tasks: ['concat:js'] } }, The task seems to get recognized, because it runs as expected: Starting 'concat:js'... Running "concat:js' (concat:js' (concat) task Updating files in app/styles/concat.css Done, without errors. And when I change a file, it doesn't compile it
